OLD JOHN STROBEL IS DEAD

He Was Taken, Insane. He Was Rich and His Neighbors

Objected to His Incarceration.

The fact has just leaked out that wealthy READING RAILROADSYSTEN The advance was equal to 1 a old John Michael Strobel, who was adjudged insane and sent to Bloomingdale Asylum in January last, died in that institution April 10 and was buried from there yesterday. There was a great deal of excitement among old Mr. Strobel's friends when he was committed to the insane asslum and a mass neeting was held, at which an energetic pro-committed to the insane asylum and a massmeeting was held, at which an energetic protest was made against such a proceeding.

Mr. Strobel lived in one of the fla's in the apartment-house at No. 328 West Fortyeighth street, which bears his name, and is very wealthy. Among those who protested against the decision of the Lunacy Commission were Police Justice Kelly, Grocer Bremer, of Forty-eighth street and Eighth avenue; ex-Deputy Coroner Schober, Dr. John Bryan and others of Mr. Strobel's tenants.

It was said that an attempt was being made to get hold of his property and keep it from his heirs, his only living relatives being in Germany and California, by persons who had insinuated themselves into his favor and were pretending to nurse him in his sickness.

Strobel's wife had died a few days after Christmas of the grip, and the old man was taken down with the mailady at the same time.
The application for a commission to examine Mr. Strobel as to his sanity was made to Judge Barrett by Dr. Johnson, who had attended Mrs. Strobel in her last illness, and was then attending the old gentleman.

A man named Sherwood had installed himself in Mr. Strobel's apartments as a professional nurse, and neither he nor Dr. Johnson would permit any of the neighbors to call on Mr. Strobel or see him.
At the mass-meeting, which was held at Mr. Bermer's grocery store, great indignation was expressed, and a lawyer was retained to oppose the commitment of Mr. Strobel. It did no good, however, for he was adjudged insane and was sent to the asyium, as stated.

Brobel was a shoe-maker by trade, and came to this country from Wurtemburg, Germany, in 1854. He saved all he could out of his earnings and his wife is said to have assisted him by picking rays.

At any rate, they amassed a fortune and invested it in real estate in 1800 in Fortyeighth street. For many years he utilized the property as a vegetable farm and made inoney in this way. He aftorwards put up the structure known as the Strobel Flats on Mrs. Wilder Tells of Her Success as a Southern Planter. Mrs. Lelia S. Wilder, the largest cotton grower in Decatur, Ala., gave the following nformation to a Washington correspondent "Six years ago," Mrs. Wilder says, "my husband died, leaving me a plantation of 1,600 acres, extending a mile and a half along the Tennessee River and about the same on " My father and mother were Ohio people who moved to the South, where I was born. I was only a schoolgirl when married. "I had never lived nor even been in the country until my husband took me to his plantation. Every day when his horse was brought around mine was saddled too, and when, after twenty months, he died, I had learned all the intricacies of cotton-raising.

"For a time I lived in Decatur, but the results from the plantation were not satisfactory, so I went back, dismissed managers and overseers, and took entire supervision myself.

Part of the 1,600 acres is valuable woodland and the rest is rented to twenty families. "I have nothing but the very best help, because I won't tolerate shiftless people or those who won't follow my directions: The planting is generally done under my own direction, and I usually ride over the place for inspection several times a week when I am at nome. "I have not had a manager in six years.

and my people, I think, are proud of working for a woman and of the good fortune that has attended my management. "Besides the cotton, my plantation supplies all the corn used in Decatur, and in accordance with the decision arrived at generally by the cotton growers not to increase the cotton-producing acreage bext year, I have had a much larger portion than usual planted with corn."
